

I Am My Beloved

Bridal Wear Collection

Knots, Ties, Bounds
The connection between you and yourself

E c h o G u

Growing up, I witnessed so many young women getting hurt on their quest for love. bridal & evening wear collection inspired by traditional Chinese celebratory colors, and knots, designed for women who would like to put themselves first by marrying themselves.

There's this cycle that I've seen in women. Where they search for love, get hurt, and lose their self-worth in the process. Only then to search again but this time to prove their worth. Instead of looking for someone to give us love. I wish we could all see the endless love inside ourselves. We are enough just as we are. If we can all learn to love ourselves first, there will be so many more healthy relationships.

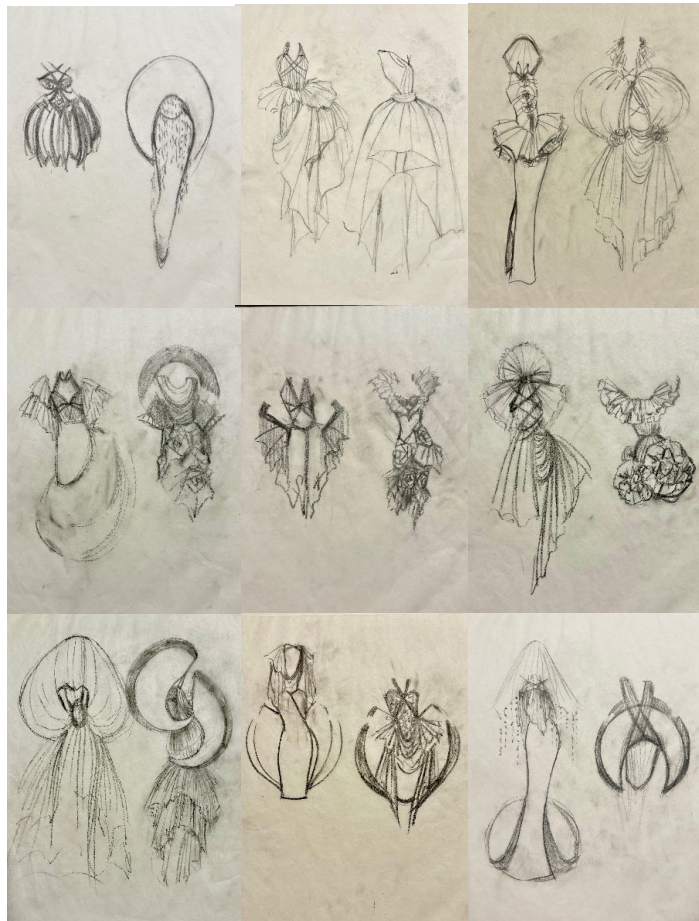

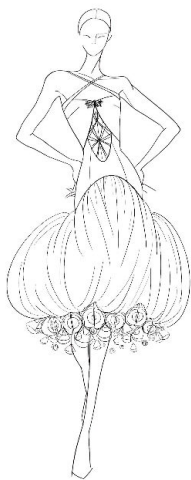

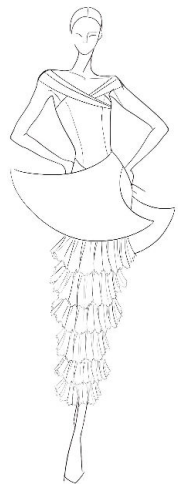

The more you chase after something
the more it gets away

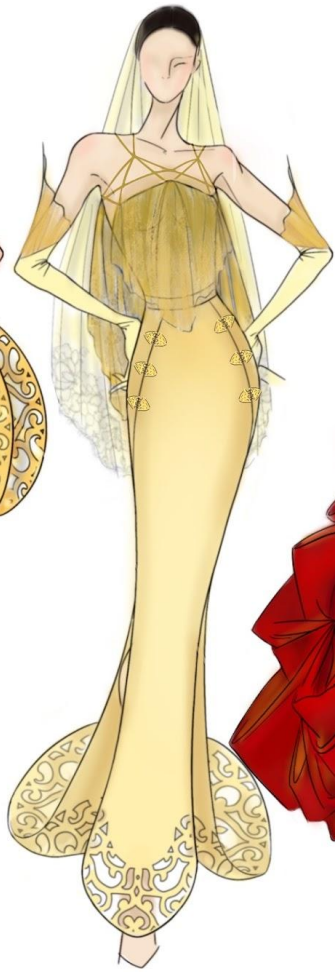

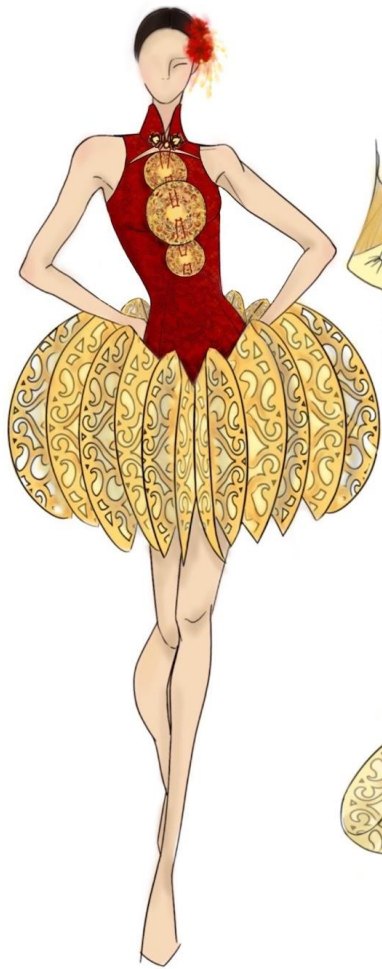

Love

You can't do without it

Right after polished, before cleaning off the compounds.

Drew using illustrator,
Incorporated the main elements in my concept:
Knots(the connection between you and yourself)
Roses (love)

Collaborated with a Jewelry major student, Laser cutted metal:
Polishing - Cleaning - Molding - Putting them together with screws.

All About Teamworks.

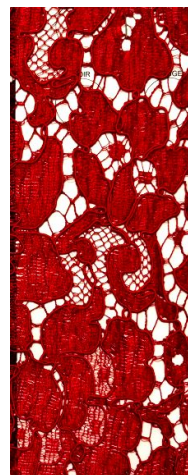

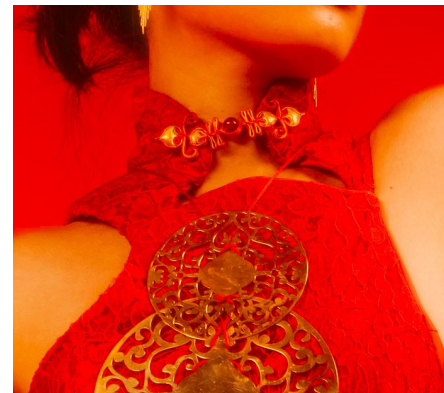

Mini Sample

Inspired by the mooncake ornaments, I designed this pattern on Illustrator.

With help from my jewelry collaborator, we found a company to laser cut the brass sheets for us, and we polished and formed them ourselves afterwards.
